PRACTICALLY PINNACLE

Dear Federico,

May this note find you well.

I have decided that I would like to make a simple scaffolding standard size and height which I think is 3 meters to the first platform. This platform would have sturdy wooden planks and on it I would place an old fashion cast-iron bathtub with legs.

I imagine such a used bathtub is available from junk shops or second hand appliance stores. Something like this:

or

I do not need the handles for the water or faucet.

The bathtub needs to be secured to the scaffolding in some not-so-visible way.

I would further imagine that it might remind people of Luis Bunel or a more elevated form of Marcel Duchamp.

Thank you.
Best,

Jimmie
